

Second teen charged in Sunset road rage fatal

FARMINGTON, Utah -- The passenger of a car that was involved in a road-rage accident that resulted in the death of a volunteer firefighter has been charged with two misdemeanors.

The 16-year-old from Clinton, whose name was withheld, is charged with negligent homicide and reckless endangerment for allegedly pulling on the car's emergency brake.

Police say that led to the August accident on Sunset's Main Street, where the car crashed into firefighter David Scott Parsell's motorcycle, killing the 22-year-old.

The teen faces a one-day trial January 19.

The car's 16-year-old driver earlier pleaded guilty to homicide by assault. He has served his time in detention, had his driver's license suspended and is on probation until he is at least 18.

The teens told police that a minivan stopped suddenly in front of them, forcing them to swerve and collide head-on with Parsell's motorcycle.

Benjamin Guy Lansford, 28, of Roy, also is charged with negligent homicide and reckless endangerment in the accident. Police say he was the van driver.
